[How to get your sims 3 working again!. The Sims 3 Trainer 1.0 Patch Version 1.0.631.00107. The Sims 3 starter pack 2.0: While people have long been warned about ocean pollution, a new study released Thursday is the first to show how much plastic pollution is in the world's oceans, and how it's changing the animals living there. The study, published in the journal Science Advances, reveals that there are so many pieces of plastic in the ocean — about 5.25 trillion pieces of plastic, worth approximately $19 trillion — that it's impossible to accurately count them. “Once in the ocean, they don't just disappear,” said the study's lead author, Frank Stapleton, a scientist at the Australian Institute of Marine Science. “Because they are so widespread, as these plastic particles go up the food chain, they are concentrating in organisms that we really do not want, like fish and other top predators, and birds.” Much of the plastic pollution we're seeing in the ocean is tiny bits of microplastics, or “nurdles,” as they're called in the study, that fall from larger pieces of trash. Here's how the study authors put it: “Ocean plastics are made up of particles
