Epigenesis is an online multiplayer sports/FPS game in which two sides are locked in a never-ending fight for world domination by playing ball. In this non-lethal ballgame of the future, players leap across platforms suspended high up in the air trying to get a ball located in the middle of the arena and score goals against their opponents. Each player carries a gravity cannon capable of pushing enemies (and friends) down from the heights of the arena. When a player scores, he receives a genetically modified super-seed and gets the opportunity to plant it onto a platform to capture it. To win the game you must capture towers and construct a node system from your goal post all the way to your opponents' goal post. If this hasn't happened by the time that the clock reaches zero, the team with the most scores win! Teamwork, tactics and precision is key to win eternal glory in a game of Epigenesis! Defense Grid: Resurgence (DGR) is the first premium expansion for the popular Defense Grid: The Awakening. Designed by the original creators of Defense Grid: The Awakening, it presents two brand new highly polished and balanced maps from an original perspective. Each week in June over four consecutive weeks a new pair of maps will be released providing new environments and strategic experiences and requiring new ways of thinking to beat back the aliens and protect your cores. Each map pack contains 2 maps each with a campaign mode and 4 additional modes associated with the design of the level. Multiplayer Two players can play. Each map uses the Standard Game Play formula of a central reactor surrounded by four layers of enemies. One player is the Controller and the other the Defender. The Controller begins with a base consisting of a reactor, 2 turrets and 2 support units. The Defender can build four layers of defenses starting with one defense layer and building up to 4 layers of defenses around the reactor. Each layer of defense includes one defense unit that provides protection against its associated enemy layer, one repair unit that repairs all damage caused to the associated defense layer, and one energy recovery unit that recovers all energy lost to enemy damage. Incoherent and Gross. Unbalanced and Wasted. Boon of the Emerald. DGR Defense Grid: Resurgence - Kill Zone Mining, Off Road Racin' When an galactic invader dropped in an envelope, Defense Grid: Resurgence creators Black teased that “something so crazy you’ve never seen it before” was coming. They continued, “Stay tuned and you’ll see it this summer as Defense Grid: Resurgence, the premium expansion for Defense Grid: The Awakening, releases for PC June 14!”

Forward nine months, the June 14 release of Defense Grid: Resurgence has arrived. As its first Map Pack from DGR, we are given two new environments sure to challenge tactics. In Kill Zone, will you construct your defenses near the spiral road in, the spiral road out, or the open platform in the middle? Perhaps all three! But you’ll need to dig in your toes to deter the invaders. Overflow has numerous connected platforms that provide countless options to turn back the enemies. Will you be able to keep the base safe? I just wanted to thank and congratulate you on such an amazing mod. Many of the enemies in your mod are one-of-a-kind that I can see myself using during my playthrough. I've looked up some screenies, and seen that you have already provided a unique weapon in the form of the katana! The challenges you've provided are as much if not more of an honor to me as you are to everyone else. Keep up the great work.PS. Hopefully you aren't charged for much of this, considering all the work you've put into this mod. Heh. Every word of this was spot-on. No barbs at all, just the exact words I would have used if I'd read the entire text (I did so a couple of times to check for typos) of the dialogue files, so thank you for doing that and making it so well documented. You've added so much to the game and I have a lot to look forward to from you! Awesome man, I think I have a copy of the original game, could you tell me what it is you used as a base of the mod. Basically i love the fact that you have put the mod on and its basically the same game except with added features and special things added. Could you tell me how you do it. I've only recently started playing with UN-skippable dialogue (Yeah, I know I could read the MPQ to see the bits I want to edit). So I'm actually very new to this! Anyway, I'm extremely impressed with the way you have the entire monster description on the map. I also noticed that some of the titles overlap. Does that mean that they also show on the map? Hi.. Actually I created one previous mod from files of old 2.5.. and when I wanted to change into 2.6 I saw "default in numbers" for creating a new mod.. so what do you mean in adding, creating new mod? Are you referring to creating a new UN-Skippable Dialogue?.. because I didn't have any idea of any of this kind, by your description. I'm going to start a thread for player stuff and put a link to it here - not just 'cause I'm the author, but because it'll take some time for me to get to it. It was quite an adventure, but I think I eventually figured it out, which is why I am here

Long ago in the Principality of Parshendi, a massive light dragon based on the fang of RATHO CROSSOVER rested comfortably, divided only by a wall. Here it was given the name of “Seven-Fiend.” When the Principality of Parshendi gave way to the Aldana Empire, Seven-Fiend was placed in the Lancer and flung into battle against the very people who sealed its sleep. In Team Fortress 2, you are Captain Mann and Captain McCree. Your teams are comprised of Soldier, Heavy, Scout and Pyro. Each class has its own unique weapon, ability, and play style. The positions you choose at the start of the game will determine which role you'll play on your team. The infantry classes represent the heavy heart of the battle – they are the generals, the mechanics of warfare. Their broad strokes of weapons and aim will decide the pace and scale of the battle. The Pyro is a powerful flame thrower that acts as the ultimate general on the battlefield. His aim is to hold and position the front lines, keep his teammates supplied with rockets, and maintain the constant battle for the lifeline of the base. The Scout is the eyes and ears of the team, the sniper who can quickly score from a distance. Your aim is to anticipate where the enemy will appear, and attack before they're at the perfect place. Your role as the sniper is most critical because you control the angles and distances, you have to see the game before it happens and decide where to take aim. Team Fortress 2 is developed by Valve and published by Valve Corporation.

Intravesical therapy with epirubicin on a weekly basis. Thirty-seven patients with stage B or C noninvasive carcinoma of the urinary bladder received epirubicin 30 mg. weekly. In the majority of patients, the treatment was administered as complete six-month courses. A complete remission was seen in 26 patients and a partial remission in 8 patients. The complete remission rate was 66.7% in the patients with carcinoma in situ and 71.4% in the patients with T1 carcinoma. The mean survival time was 18 months, and the median survival time was 10.5 months. Side effects of the treatment were leukopenia in 46% and asthenia in 25% of the patients. The most frequent gastrointestinal side effect was nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. Hematuria was seen in three patients. One patient died from septicemia during the treatment. The most frequent type of recurrence was local, and two patients developed metastatic disease. The results of this study confirm the value of epirubicin in the treatment of stage B or C patients with noninvasive carcinoma of the bladder. Euthalia In Greek mythology, Euthalia (; Ancient Greek: Εὐθαλία) was one of the Dioscuri, twin sons of Castor and Pollux. Both were born on the shores of the Ionian Sea, supposedly at Dorion (modern day Kardak, near Trieste). She was also the sister of Bellerophon. Her name derives from the meaning of "wide portion, room, territory, extent, generous gift" (Εὐθαλία). According to Pausanias, it was the first name Castor and Pollux bestowed on their sons: they gave the eldest to the one whose form signified cleverness, the younger to the one whose form indicated healthiness. Family Euthalia was the sister of Castor and Pollux, the maternal half-sisters of Bellerophon, they were born in Dorium (probably Cattaro). She is sometimes described as the aunt of Chiron. Euthalia was also the cousin of Iphiclides and of Clytoneus, the twin sons of Poseidon. Mythology Eurycleia claimed that the Dioscuri would only consent to marry the daughters of strangers: "to win them, they all of us have sacrificed our sister's virginity to Zeus." A story is told how the goddess Hera outraged the nymph of the Libanon for delaying Eurycleia's hand in marriage, so the nymph bound Eurycleia with an eternal curse, turning her from a beautiful maiden into a hideous hag. One day Eurycleia was trying to appeal to an imperial ambassador, whose mother she claimed to be a friend of hers. She was seized by dread and cried out: "Thy mother, O king, was my bed-mate!" Suddenly, her luscious mouth became uglier and her hands and feet hideous in their shape
